»Douze Perspectives« is a collection at the intersection of photography, art, and film. At its core is a reflection on moments whose atmosphere, compositional structures, and sense of humor articulate a characteristic visual language, navigating between observation and interpretation, documentary gestures, alongside an experimental visual practice.

The selection aims to offer readers an encounter with the portrayed places, situations, and experiences. It cultivates a space in which individual interpretations and moments of recognition can unfold.

An office for creative direction, founded in 2025 by Natasha Adhiambo Okoth and Robin Christopher Körner, providing conceptual and visual communication services across art, fashion, and culture, its practice is driven by research, discussion, and an ongoing interest in contemporary discourse. With a focus on precise and experimental approaches, we develop identities for our project partners in collaboration with photographers, artists, industrial designers, and further networks. Working across disciplines and media, we offer a holistic creative support that connects strategy, communication consultancy, and design, including services such as: Art direction, Communication concepts, Branding, Print, Digital and Web Design, Imagery Concepts and Production assistance.
